New Tile Roofs Over Front Doors

Ivan and his crew came in April and tore down the old palapa roofs that were over the entry way doors to #7 and #8. They were replaced with red tile - adding a splash of color to the courtyard areas. Consensus has been that they look great! And Irving seems excited because maybe the drains up there won't get so clogged this rainy season. It was a ton of trash to haul away though!

Irving Insider Info

We bought a new hose. Why would you care about this? Because it's for firefighting! We've had numerous occasions where fires are lit across the street and embers float over towards our palapa. Last time Kathy and Melissa (being the only ones here) drug out hoses to wet down the palapa to try and prevent a fire. We decided that having a hose handy for any owner was a good idea. And there was a hose hanger already in the west side garage. So the new hose, with a spray nozzle is now located there in case anyone needs it.

Local Goings On Easter Egg Hunt!

Paloma hid eggs all around the pool deck for her son, Diego and his pal, Ollin. The older kid's name is Mark.

MYTHBUSTERS

Today's Myth: Bellamar is scorpion free.

Leta and Kelly were treated to a surprise when they found a scorpion in the kitchen sink. Irving apparently has a tried and true method for dealing with them - a pair of needle nose pliers.

Arachnid trivia for the day - there are 250 species of scorpions in Mexico, making it the most diverse of all countries for scorpion species. Gosh, how lucky for us.
